

LYNXITE 1971

Lincoln College

New freshmen during Orientation week were treated to guided tours of the LC campus led by old-head sophomores like Debi Andrews, Charley Mathews, and Ruth Patton.

The incoming freshmen learned the ropes from opening day, and were ready for anything-including the best teachers, best places to study, best places to head for on weekends, and the best way to avoid the Dean.

Parents and students swarmed over the campus as the last good meal was enjoyed before we got down to the grind of a new school year. All too soon it was hard work and long hours hitting the books.

The Lynx golf team was an early arrival on the sports scene. LC golfers competed with other Region IV junior college teams on even terms during the season.

"WELCOME TO LINCOLN COLLEGE AND YOUR NEW HOME"

"Are you sure I will need all these books? What will I tell my mother when she sees the bills? She'll kill me for sure."

All those faces, those unforgettable faces that were LC in '71. Over 600 students, almost 50 faculty members, house parents, staff, administration, secretaries and maintenance men. All faces to be forgotten, sometimes remembered out of the crowds of people that rush through our lives and on with their own.

Most of them will be but a blur on our memories, but some will stand out to symbolize LC in '71. They will be etched in our minds and remind us that we too were once among those unforgettable faces.

A GALLERY OF FACES FROM LINCOLN '71

WHEN WE WORKED,WE WORKED HARD

Accounting for Mr. Daniels took many hours outside the classroom as well as in class. Students took whatever place they could for study time, either in the library, their rooms, a nice shady spot on the front lawn, or like these two eager learners, in an unused classroom on the third floor of University Hall.

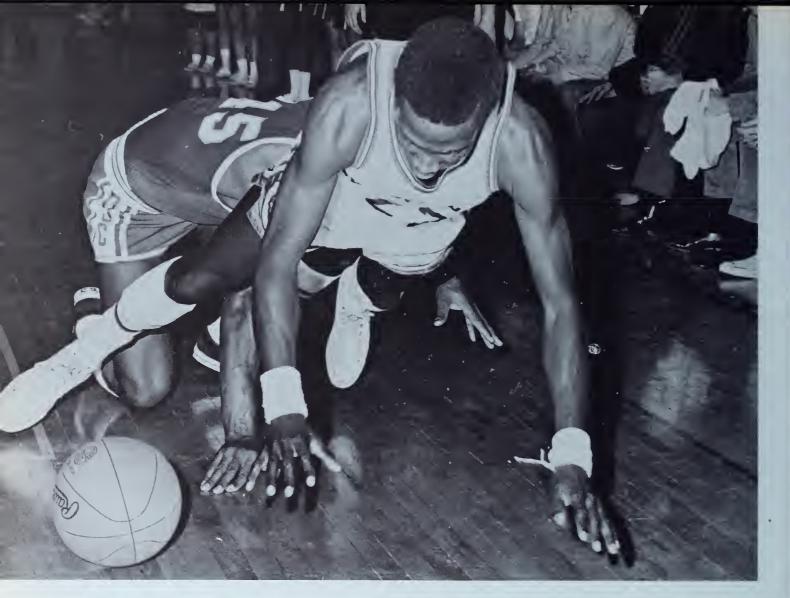

Field trips are part of the learning experience, too. Illinois History students were just one group of many that journeyed to points in the state where their education could be made a little more vivid, a little more real. The students below are gathered around a nature scene in the Illinois State Museum in Springfield.

Whether it's throwing pots on the patio of the Student Union, reading microfilm in the library, or keying trees at Funk's Grove, the learning process took LC students to many different places. Not only during Intersession, but throughout the year the pursuit of knowledge knew no bounds.

From the basketball court to the dance floor, there was an abundance of opportunity to blow off a little steam. We used muscle and sweat instead of brain power, and helped become a little closer to the Greek ideal: a well-rounded person. And in the process we learned to stretch to our limits, and what those limits were.

WHEN WE PLAYED, WE PLAYED HARD

Dramatics, swimming, or sounding the chords of the human heart on a guitar's throat, LC offered creative opportunity. Mr. Neil Newlan produced a number of dramatic productions of excellent style and sophistication, Mr. Paul Fields was master of the natatorium where he developed swimmers of the calibre of a straining Joe Weeks, and many students like Domina Frankovic on guitar did her own thing, with beautiful results.

Two major new buildings, one completed and one on the way, crowned the final year of President Raymond Dooley's tenure. The new McKinstrey Library was dedicated to service at the opening of the school year, while the Johnston Fine Arts Center (above) began to take shape on the grave of our recently fire-departed Administration Building – born 1903.

With the completion of ground-breaking and cornerstone-laying ceremonies on the Johnston Fine Arts Center, work began almost immediately to construct the new building which will be used for OUR CAMPUS theatre, classroom and office. CONTINUED TO GROW, ADDING NEW BUILDINGS FOR GREATER LEARNING

As a large crowd gathers for the dedicatory opening of the new McKinstrey library and Lincoln Museum, Mr. Wyneken and Vice President Layman pitch pennies to see who will enter the building first.

AND WITH OUR GROWTH CAME NEW AWARENESS

Rocket enthusiasts blast off from their launching pad at Cape Kennedy Midwest (above), somewhere behind the baseball diamond, in a futile attempt to place a payload of Budweiser into orbit around Forsythe Hall.

Results, however, were far from satisfactory (right) when the launch crew realized their vehicle was rapidly disappearing over the horizon, never again to be seen. Oh, well. Back to the drawing board,

AND THIS
DEDICATE
RAYMOND
N. DOOLEY

For almost a quarter of a century Raymond Nelson Dooley has been president of Lincoln College, He came here in 1948 when the staff consisted of 17 people with 60 students. Now, in 1971, there are 56 people on the staff, 41 of whom are teachers, and almost 600 students.

Before coming to LC, he was admissions counselor at Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri. Later, he was director of student personnel services at Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington.

We see a lot of President Dooley in our campus today, as is reflected through many of the buildings which were constructed during his tenure. All of the dorms, the Student Union, Natatorium, Student Services Building, additions to the gymnasium, McKinstry Library, and Johnston Fine Arts Building (now under construction) came as a result of his leadership. He also instituted several new ideas at Lincoln College, including a more adequate application form and the use of part time teachers, which resulted in the widening scope of the junior college curriculum.

President Dooley has always been interested in the students at Lincoln College. He encouraged their reorganization of activities, including greater student voice in campus affairs, and helped to make adjustments for the students' needs and interests.

During his long career in education, President Dooley has been awarded many honors, too numerous to recite, but among the more prestigious would be: honorary doctor of laws, Steed College; Doctor of Letters, Milliken University; Diploma of Honor, Lincoln Memorial University. He is also a member of Theta Alpha Phi and Sigma Chi fraternities, Rotary International, and the Civil War Roundtables of Chicago, New York and Springfield.

In addition, Mr. Dooley is a member of the National Lincoln Sesquicentennial Commission, the Harvard Club of Chicago, and chairman of the board of trustees of the Illinois State Historical Society. He is founder and chairman of the board of the Lincoln Forum for Constitutional Education, past chairman for the Illinois Committee on Coperation of the Illinois Conference on Higher Education, and director of the Associated Colleges of Illinois, of which LC is the only active junior college.

President Dooley has also brought many famous personalities to our campus to speak and receive honorary degrees, including: Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Governor Richard Ogilvie and lieutenant governor Paul Simon, former Governor Otto Kerner, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, cartoonist Bill Mauldin, Lord Baden-Power, founder of the Boy Scout movement, and numerous other luminaries.

For all these great services and achievements, the staff of the 1971 Lynxite dedicate this yearbook to Raymond Nelson Dooley.

Faculty and administration spokesmen met with each group for an orientation briefing. Above, Coach Chuck Lindstrom explains the intramural athletic program to an interested group of freshmen.

Small groups of freshmen were guided to all the important stops on campus, such as the Davidson-Sheffer Gym.

A trip to the book store, where a staggering sum of loot melted away, was a must before attending that first class.

New Library, Arts Building Reflect Growth

Two new buildings, one completed and one begun, graced the LC campus in 1971. First, the McKinstry Library, named in honor of the major donor Miss Helen McKinstry of Delavan, was dedicated to use at the February convocation opening the second semester.

Then work continued on the Johnston Fine Arts Building, destined to stand on the same site as that once occupied by the Administration Building, which was destroyed by fire. Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Johnston of Lincoln and Mrs. David Harts were the primary sponsors of the new facility.

Casino Night in March featured a whole host of ways to blow your wad. Blackjack was one of them.

Student Activities Filled the School Year

Variety was the name for a bewildering array of student activities at LC this year. Mr. Jack Parish, Student Senate, Circle K, and others presented something for everyone in the way of extracurriculars.

From Ted Mack's Amateur Hour in September to the Tandem Bike races in May, every weekend and plenty of week days were filled with student activities.

Dances, hayrides, variety shows, guest concerts, roller skating, and sporting events all helped pass the time between bouts with the books.

Brad Hudson and Ralph Eaton were casualties in their attempts at tandem road racing.

Jim Boelsen and Robin Brittan were things of beauty at the Spring semiformal at the Ramada Inn.

Parents strolled the campus between visits to teachers, while students rehearsed for the evening Talent Show.

Parents' Weekend Was a Time of Reckoning and Reunion

Parents' Weekend each fall semester is a time for the first glimpse of the realities of college grades for most freshmen.

Mom and Dad come down, get a look at the campus and atmosphere, then listen with wide ears as teachers and advisors discuss these GPA's.

Later on a good meal with the folks at a nearby steak house, Talent Show in the gym, and time to buckle down for the long grind to semester's end and Christmas.

Scenes from "Spoon River Anthology" featured members of the cast (below), who recreated life in rural Illinois with all its sorrows, hardships and joys.

Mr. Robert Wiley, director of the production, claims success for the show not only to a superb script by the author but also to creative acting on the part of the cast, an innovative and adaptable set design by Cheryl Arra, and light design by Bob Rang.

Appearing in the production were Ruth Gross, John Read, Gary Maxey, Helen Borotinski, Brad Swanson, LaGene Zimmer, Helen Curtis, Charlie Matthews, and the ubiquitous Jim Boelsen.

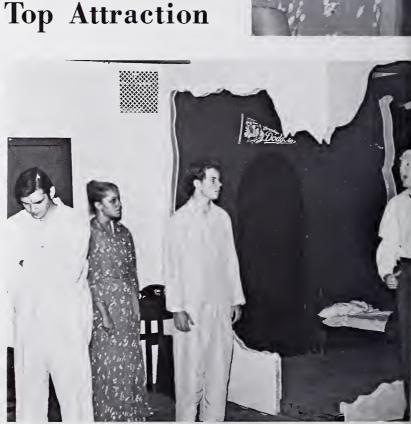

Death of a Salesman Top Attraction

Jim Boelsen as Willy Loman led the cast to a stirring performance at Lincoln College, then during Intersession took it to Champaign where it was one of the top productions at a major college competition there.

Helen Borotinski played the part of Willy's wife Linda, while his sons Biff and Happy were portrayed by Gary Maxey and Charley Matthews.

Also in the cast were Roger Kaminski as Uncle Ben, Bob Rang as Charley, Kathy Thornburg as the woman, and Ruth Gross as the other woman.

Red Carpet Rolled Out For Mothers Day Weekend

On a beautiful weekend in May, LC students honored their mothers with an outstanding program of events that featured student talent and student honors.

Saturday morning parents and teachers got together in the Union at a coffee hour, then in the afternoon Honors Day awards were presented to outstanding students in a variety of academic pursuits.

The Lynx baseball team also performed for the Dads on hand, while in the evening Mr. Robert Wiley produced an excellent student talent show MC'd by the indomitable Jim Boelsen.

An art show sponsored by the Art Club was a big hit, while again the students shined with their Sunday morning interfaith religious program.

174 Gain Degrees At Final Dooley

Commencement

Commencement on May 30, the culmination of 106 years of Lincoln College history, saw 174 graduates receive either Associate of Arts degrees or certificates.

In addition, four honorary doctorates were bestowed, to retiring President Raymond Dooley and his wife Florence Dooley, Donald Graham of Evanston, and Michael J. Howlett of Springfield.

For President Dooley it was a momentous occasion as tributes poured in from a multitude of sources. Honorary citizenship was bestowed by Governor Ogilvie of Illinois, honorary membership in the class of 1971 came from the graduating class, and a telegram of praise from President Richard Nixon climaxed the eulogies.

It was indeed a gala yet sad day for LC as Raymond N. Dooley completed his course amid fanfares and praise.

Student Senate Led in Broadening Involvement

Under the direction of President Louis Ebert and his vice, Bob Rang, Senate accomplished a number of goals this past year.

In addition to sponsoring and promoting the usual diversified activity program, Senate worked to increase the participation of students in the functioning of LC. Members of Senate joined faculty committees, helped shape policy, and eventually took over the program for graduation.

In addition, working with Dean DuFault and Mr. Parish, Senate had a number of major changes passed for the improvement of student life on campus. Increased dorm visitation privileges was the most dramatic, but others followed.

Finally, a select committee worked to revise the student handbook and made recommendations for future Senate groups to pursue.

Circle K Is Proud to Stand for Service

Circle K, Lincoln College service auxiliary of Kiwanis International, completed a profitable season of good works and school programs under the direction of faculty advisor Randy Reichert.

Starting with sponsoring a foster child overseas, the Circle K boys raised money for their projects in a number of ways that benefited themselves, the college, and the charities they were working for.

Twice Circle K sponsored a blood bank drive with good success, had a car wash, and organized a pair of well-received road rallies.

In addition Circle K sold peanuts for the local Kiwanis, ran a street carnival and an excellent Casino Night for the whole student body.

Brand X Leads Way to New Journalism Concept

Forsaking the standard Lincolnian format of past years, a group of independent and incorruptible journalism buffs this year began printing a new student newspaper — Brand X.

By springtime, amazingly, the mimeographed copies were becoming hot news; in fact, unexpected competition bloomed until at one time there were four papers on campus including a faculty-written Faculty Flam.

Despite opposition from The Rumor and Truth About It, Brand X remained the major source of news on campus. Its coverage, although liberally doused with mistakes in grammar and spelling, was lively, amusing, and well-informed.

This Volume

Meeting once and often twice a week all school year, the staff of the Lynxite – LC's student yearbook – did their best to present a factual, complete account of the past school year as they saw it.

Working under the direction of editor and chief idea woman Debi Andrews, the Lynxite crew spent hours identifying faces, writing copy, drawing layouts, and clamoring for more pictures from photog Mike Okamura.

Although far more work than fun, the yearbook stands on its merits as a record of 1970-71 at Lincoln College.

"Lincoln College Presents"

Features Amateur Radio

Each Wednesday evening the staff of "Lincoln College Presents" put on a one-hour radio program about LC over WLCC, educational FM station of Lincoln Christian College.

Programs varied, but usually included rock music, college news and special features. The most popular programs were the open line interviews which gave students a chance to express their views on campus matters and to ask questions of leading campus personalities.

The records show that 18 students participated in the programming and many others in the presentation itself.

The LC Amateur Radio Club is a small group of students who get their kicks from learning radio theory and regulations, and conversing with other hams by wireless.

The college station, WA90UQ, located in HH 25, has been operating since 1966 under the guidance of Mr. Brayton Danner, chemistry and physics professor.

Art Club and Lynxaires Appeal to Special Groups

Music and the arts were just two groups that filled the interests of students who looked beyond the classroom for their fulfillment.

Mr. Jerry Stivers, director of choir and orchestra, organized a musical group — the Lynxaires — who performed at many college functions including Mothers Day and the Student Senate dinner to name two.

In addition the Lynxaires, who combined choreography with their singing, went on tour during Intersession and acted as good will spokesmen spreading the name and impression of LC among high schools throughout the state.

The Art Club sponsored a fine Mothers Day show, including competition in painting, photography, and sculpture, and demonstrations and sales for the visiting parents.

Art Club members were also instrumental in suggested decor changes in the Student Union as well as running an autumn show during Parents' Weekend. Intersession Was a Time for Experiment, Travel, and Change

January, the bleak month in central Illinois, has become the eventful month for Intersession students at LC.

For during that period the usual classroom procedure shuts down and innovation takes front row center.

Classes spread from Florida to Colorado to Europe, pursuing interests from the ski slopes of Aspen to the fish ponds of Key West.

Music students tour and sing, dramatics groups tour and emote, while some even stay right on campus to do their thing in reasonable calm and without the diversion of other courses.

Intersession is a time of tradition and monotony breaking.

Mr. Stivers and his singers toured state high schools to perform.

An hour's credit in physical education went to the hardy band of ski enthusiasts who journeyed to Aspen with Mr. Lindstrom.

Durlacher on the turn in the 1650

Tenth in the nation and second in Region IV was the enviable record rung up this season by the small but mighty swimming team of Coach Paul Fields.

A pair of Lynx swimmers
- Dale Stempel and Ron
Henrioulle - were named All Americans, while Bo Alexander's three first place finishes in the Region IV meet was also outstanding.

The Lynx completed their dual meet season with an 8-6 mark, then trailed Triton by a 143-106 score in the Regionals.

In the nationals Stempel finished second in the backstroke events, Henrioulle was sixth in the 50 yard freestyle, and Alexander's 1650 was good for seventh.

LYNX FINISH 14-14

Despite posting a 14-14 record, the Lynx provided plenty of thrills for local basketball fans throughout the season with lots of scoring, high-paced action, and a tendency to come up with the unexpected at the most unexpected moments.

Roger Beals, who finished his career for the Lynx as the third highest scorer in school history, was a constant double-figure performer, as witnessed by his driving hook shot (far left) over Wabash Valley's 6'10" center.

Jim Perryman (left) represented the Lynx in the state junior college All Star game and was outstanding there. He set a school record with 19 assists in a single game, often was a powerful rebounder and scorer, and will be sorely missed.

Freshman John Kotzelnick brought to Lincoln one of the truly great rebounding abilities despite standing only six feet tall. Jumping, John, voted outstanding player by his teammates, was a terror on the boards, with or without the ball.

Bill Hoagland, although injured late in the season, was a steady performer and top defensive man, while Keith Buckingham and Bruce Courtwright added board strength. Bob McElhaney's uncanny shooting brought the crowd to their feet, and Brad Slater was a valuable man off the bench.

Two big guns for the Lynx were sophomore Jim Perryman (driving left) who starred in the state JC All Star game, and MVP freshman John Kotzelnick (below leaping), whose board work and determination will be welcomed back next season.

Lynx Nine Wins 17 Games in Fine Season

Top hurler Steve Templeton in his delivery.

Led by a well-balanced blend of veterans and newcomers, Lincoln's baseball nine set one of the finest season records in recent years with 17 wins against 10 losses.

Bill Piskorski, freshman from Peoria, was the top regular hitter with a .346 mark, while veteran Steve Templeton paced the pitching staff with a 1.61 earned run average and five wins against a pair of defeats.

Only a tough-luck loss to Lincoln Land in tournament final action kept it from being an outstanding season.

Mike Dement hustled around third base (above) in a night contest on Galen Shirley field, while Terry Shay trots home (below) after parking one out of the park.

Bill Piskorski drives past Jim Richardson in a close race for the IM basketball crown.

Hal Leedy and Bill Upthegrove break from the huddle in an IM football contest.

Cold Duck Is Big Name in Intramurals

Cold Duck was the first name to come to prominence during the intramural season, as the veteran touch football crew, led by quarterback Brad Hudson and a host of fleet receivers, ran off an undefeated season.

Cold Duck even managed an overtime victory over the previously undefeated faculty after going 6-6 in regulation time.

The Staggs and the Doinks were the toast of the basketball competition. Mike Paulis netted 24 points in the finale to give his Staggs a 63-62 championship victory over the favored Doinks.

Competition in a variety of other sports from chess to water basketball, softball to bicycle racing produced some colorful names and good sportsmanship.

Critical crowds of knowing experts kept an eye on the action and the official, Steve Templeton.

Golfers Hit the Links

Fall weather found the Lynx golf team out doing battle with mixed success in the junior college ranks. Without too much experience, the LC swingers enjoyed little success but a good deal of fresh air and friendly company.

Coach Chuck Lindstrom points the way.

Netters Fare Well

in Spring

Under the direction of Coach Don Horr, the tennis squad fared quite well in spring competition.

High point of the season was a number one doubles victory in the Lincoln Land Invitational by Mike Paulis and Tyler Brayton.

Singles victories were scarce, but Mike Okamura and Pete Lieberman scored in the Region IV doubles, as did the number one team of Paulis and Brayton. Both lost in singles outings to the eventual finalists.

Coach Horr is flanked by his two top players with the spoils of their success. Brayton (left) and Paulis paced the Lynx netters.

MEMORIUM

Just one week before first semester ended a tragedy occurred. On December 11, 1970, a member of the student body met with death. George Louis Croteau died in an auto accident just eight miles from Havana. George was a commuter from Mason City. He was the Pianist for the Lynxaires and Chamber Singers and other groups for the Music Department. His death was a shock to the student body.

Finis....

To another year at old LC. The memories we will carry on to other schools and other places. The friends we made and the trials we shared.

Finis to some of our old dreams, but welcome to a heap of new dreams that we never thought could be.

The year sped by so rapidly, and another scurried in on its heels. We learned a lot, sometimes in the classroom and sometimes out.

But now it is time to say finis, and on to new fields...
